

BILL EMERSON NATIONAL HUNGER FELLOWSHIP

2022-2023 Fellowship Application Guide

Introduction

Thank you for your interest in the Bill Emerson National Hunger Fellowship! If you are reading this, you know that hunger and poverty are serious problems in the United States today—and you agree with us that they are solvable. This guide covers how the Emerson Fellowship works, what you can expect to gain as a fellow, and how to prepare your application.

For nearly 30 years, Emerson Fellows have worked in communities large and small, urban, suburban, and rural, in 47 states, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia, with the shared goal of ending hunger and poverty in the United States. Over 500 Emerson fellows have completed the program, gaining extensive experience in effective solutions to end hunger while expanding the capacity of nearly 300 local, regional, and national organizations. We partner with a range of organizations that focus on addressing the root causes of hunger and poverty, and we approach our work through a racial equity lens. At the heart of the fellowship is the cohort experience, with each successive class of fellows forming a powerful, supportive network as they develop leadership and professional skills.

The Emerson Fellowship is a program of the Congressional Hunger Center, a bipartisan nonprofit organization whose mission is to develop, inspire, and connect leaders in the movement to end hunger, and to advocate for public policies that create a food-secure world.

Again, thank you for your interest. We look forward to reviewing your application.

Tony Jackson
Director
Bill Emerson National
Hunger Fellowship Program

▲ 28th Class Emerson Fellows ('21-'22) at orientation in Washington, D.C., August 2021.

THE HUNGER CENTER'S APPROACH

Hunger is a multifaceted and far-reaching problem—and the movement to end it should be, too.

We believe that governments, nonprofits, educational institutions, corporations, philanthropy, and individuals all have a role to play, and a variety of approaches and strategies are required to solve hunger and poverty.

Any lasting solution to hunger must be led by people with first-hand experience.

We invest in developing the leadership of people who have experienced hunger and poverty and people of color—who are disproportionately affected by hunger—as designers, implementers, and evaluators of anti-hunger programs and projects.

We know breakdowns in understanding and differences in perspective on the root causes of the problem stand in the way of scalable solutions.

Hunger Fellows focus on bridging the gap between community-based work and public policy, highlighting the ways that each can inform and strengthen the other.

Read more about our approach.

▲ Representative Bill Emerson (right) with his colleague and friend Rep. Mickey Leland

WHO WAS BILL EMERSON?

Rep. Bill Emerson (January 1, 1938 – June 22, 1996) was a Republican congressional leader who crossed party lines to bring lawmakers together in the fight to end hunger and poverty. Emerson was first elected to Congress in 1980 to represent Missouri's 10th district and was re-elected seven times until his death in 1996.

His tireless bipartisan work during his tenure in Congress advanced numerous anti-hunger initiatives, including The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP) and the Bill Emerson Good Samaritan Act, which was named posthumously in his honor. The Bill Emerson National Hunger Fellowship serves as a living legacy to his steadfast leadership and dedication to ending hunger, and Rep. Emerson's bipartisan approach to legislation forms the foundation of our work.

Learn more about Rep. Emerson

How Does the Fellowship Work?

The Emerson Fellowship develops effective leaders in the movement to end hunger in the U.S. Over an 11 month period fellows develop their leadership skills and gain hands-on experience through placements with host organizations at the local, state, regional, and national levels.

Field Placements

For the first six months Emerson Fellows are placed with organizations across the U.S. with a local or regional focus, including food banks, anti-hunger/anti-poverty advocacy groups, food policy councils, research institutions, and state, local, and regional government agencies.

Policy Placements

Following their field placements, fellows shift their focus to national anti-hunger and anti-poverty policy through placements with national advocacy groups, think tanks, and federal government agencies.

Host organizations apply to host Emerson Fellows through a competitive process. Fellows are matched with their placements by Emerson Program staff based on several factors, including the fellows' interest and experience. Throughout the year, fellows are supported with comprehensive staff-led learning events and professional development opportunities. Fellows form a powerful cohort, sharing their successes and challenges and learning from one another on both professional and personal levels.

▲ 24th Class Emerson Fellows react during a training session at their orientation, August 2017.

KEY PROGRAM DATES

Late August 2022
Orientation for 29th Class

Early September 2022
Fellows begin working at field placements

Early March 2023
Fellows begin working at policy placements

Late July 2023
Fellows complete policy placements; fellowship ends

▲ Clockwise from top: a scene from orientation; Sofia Hinojosa and Mariama Badjie ('19-'20) prepare to present their field work; Leslie Rios ('20-'21) at Houston Food Bank.

Late October 2022
Fellows gather for midfield retreat to reconnect and share experience

Mid-February 2023
Policy Learning Event: fellows present key findings from their field placements and debrief their experience

"My time as an Emerson Hunger Fellow was the perfect stepping-stone from my previous direct service and local advocacy work to national-level policy. As a soon-to-be MPP student, this program has helped me get my foot in the door and build a strong foundation of knowledge and skills to fight issues of hunger and poverty on a broad scale."

Alekya Prathivadi ('18-'19)

FIELD PLACEMENTS

Emerson Fellows' work at their field placements reflects a wide variety of approaches to ending hunger and poverty in the United States at local, state, and regional levels. From advocacy and outreach to research and analysis, projects started by fellows continue to have an impact years after the they have completed their fellowship year.

Anne-Marie Noll ('19-'20) was placed with the Native American Agriculture Fund in Fayetteville, Arkansas, where she researched economically viable and sustainable options for Native farmers, ranchers, fishers, hunters, and other food producers to market their products in their own communities.

Read more about Anne-Marie's work.

Margaux Johnson-Green ('19-'20) was placed with the Second Harvest Food Bank of Middle Tennessee in Nashville, where she developed a survey for participants in the Commodity Supplemental Food Program to collect firsthand accounts of the program's accessibility for people aged 60 and older.

Read more about Margaux's work.

WHERE WILL I BE PLACED?

Fellows do not select their placements, but are matched to host organizations based on their interests and experience, the host organizations' needs, and other factors.

Since 1994, Emerson Fellows have worked at placements in 47 states plus Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia. Past placements have included food banks, advocacy organizations, food policy councils, local and regional government agencies, and more.

See the field placements of the 28th Class of Emerson Fellows \('21-'22\)

POLICY PLACEMENTS

From February to July, Emerson Fellows are placed with host organizations that focus on national anti-hunger policy. Fellows' work can include research, outreach, advocacy, and public education projects supporting national initiatives and campaigns.

WHERE WILL I BE PLACED?

Like with field placements, fellows are matched to their policy placements by program staff. Matches take into account the fellows' interests, field placement experiences, and career goals, as well as the host organizations' needs and other factors.

Since 1994 Emerson Fellows have worked with over 100 policy-focused host organizations. Past placements have included national advocacy organizations, think tanks, research institutions, federal government agencies, and more.

See the policy placements of the 27th Class of Emerson Fellows \('20-'21\)

Heather Street ('19-'20) was placed with the Duke University World Food Policy Center where she created a report that illuminated the impact of the COVID-19 crisis on the emergency food system, detailing needs, barriers, actions, and successes, and giving recommendations for moving from a charity to justice model.

Emily Hwang ('19-'20) was placed with the U.S. Department of Agriculture where she researched best practices for school lunch period times and supported staff to ensure that over 30 million children could still access school meals during the Coronavirus pandemic.

TRAINING AND SKILLS

During their time in the fellowship, Emerson Fellows receive more than 30 days of professional and leadership development training.

Orientation

The fellowship begins with a comprehensive orientation exploring the history of hunger and poverty in the United States, including their root causes, and the importance of applying a racial equity lens to anti-hunger and anti-poverty work. This initial training is also a time for community-building among the fellows.

Midfield Retreat

Midway through their field placements fellows come together to reflect on their experiences in the field and discuss their key insights about solutions to ending hunger and poverty in. They also use this retreat as a time to forge deeper connections with their cohort and the Hunger Center staff.

Policy Learning Event

In February fellows reconvene to process their field experiences and participate in intensive policy training. Fellows learn how national public policy is developed and implemented, and the roles of the federal government, advocacy groups, lobbyists, think-tanks, and other organizations in the legislative process. Fellows also receive briefings from experts on the status of current hunger and poverty policy issues.

KEYS TO LEADERSHIP

Like all programs and projects developed by the Congressional Hunger Center, the trainings for Emerson Fellows are designed using our Leadership Capabilities Model. This model identifies eleven core capabilities of an effective leader grouped into three interlocking categories which build upon and reinforce one another: develop self, lead with others, and create change. Read more about the theory behind the model at our website.

▲ Artis Trice ('21-'22, left) in discussion with a fellow fellow during orientation, August 2021.

A POWERFUL NETWORK

Emerson Fellows form a supportive, tight-knit learning cohort from the very first to the very last day of the program.

The Emerson Program creates an environment that fosters open dialogue and encourages fellows to learn from the diverse collection of experiences within their class. After the fellowship ends each cohort joins the network of Emerson alums, now more than 500 strong, by sharing resources and engaging with current and past fellows as trainers, speakers, supervisors, and mentors.

"I've grown and learned so much from fellows, Hunger Center staff, and the Emerson alum network. The fellowship has provided me with great work experiences, great friends, and an amazing network of experts to lean on in my future career."

Pierre' Collins ('18-'19)

▲ Fellow Analicia Bañales ('19-'20, right) with alum Jess Luna ('10-'11) at field work presentations in Washington, D.C., February 2020.

FINANCIAL PACKAGE AND BENEFITS

Financial Package

The Hunger Center establishes its financial packages for fellows based on their location, taking into consideration the cost of living at both the field and policy placements. One resource we consider when setting financial packages is the MIT Living Wage Calculator. Emerson Fellows typically receive financial packages ranging from $38,000 to $45,000 over the duration of the fellowship.

Graduate School Partnerships

Emerson alums pursuing Masters' degrees in public health or public policy at select institutions of higher learning are eligible for significant discounts on tuition. As of 2021 the Hunger Center maintains partnerships with Carnegie Mellon University's Heinz College and the University of Virginia's Frank Batten School of Leadership and Public Policy.

Learn more about our partnerships.

Other Benefits

Emerson Fellows also gain:

- Membership in a dynamic learning community of fellows;
- Connection to an extensive network of alums, partners, and experts;
- Experience working with community and policy leaders;
- Training, mentoring, and leadership development; and
- Project management experience.

▲ Alexandra Wilson (left) and Tenzin Dhakong ('21-'22) at orientation in Washington, D.C.

▼ Yesenia Jimenez ('18-'19) speaks on a panel at the National Anti-Hunger Policy Conference.

INDEPENDENT CONSULTANTS

Per 2 U.S. Code §1161 Emerson Fellows serve as independent consultants and not as employees of the Hunger Center or their host organizations. This means that fellows are expected to secure and finance their own health insurance, and to save for and pay their own taxes; accordingly, health care costs and taxes are among the factors we take into consideration when determining fellows' financial packages.

Hunger Center staff can provide Fellows with some limited guidance and share resources, but if you have not worked as a contractor and managed self-employment taxes before, we strongly recommend doing some research on your responsibilities under the law before you submit your application. We suggest starting with this information from the Internal Revenue Service.

AFTER THE FELLOWSHIP

After their fellowships end, alums use their experience to determine how they can be most effective in ending hunger and poverty.

Many join organizations working to eradicate hunger and poverty, while others go on to pursue Masters' degrees, law school, or medical school.

Wherever they go after the fellowship, alums know how to be effective agents of change for a hunger-free world.

In a 2017 survey Emerson alums reported how the fellowship made an impact on their life:

94%

said taking part in the fellowship made a significant impact in their personal development.

88%

said the fellowship made an impact in their ability to lead with others.

88%

said the fellowship made an impact in their ability to create change.

95%

would recommend the Emerson Fellowship to others.

"The fellowship has been great opportunity to understand how nonprofits function and what my role will be in the fight to end hunger. With the skills I have gained, I was able to secure a job at a nonprofit in my hometown. I will be doing the work I'm passionate about and serving my community by taking community concerns and turning them into policy action."

Keisha Perkins ('18-'19)

▲ Alum Cara Brumfield ('10-'11) delivers her acceptance speech at the 2018 Hunger Leadership Awards.

PART II

How Do I Apply?

The next class of Emerson Fellows will serve from fall 2021 to summer 2022. Applications for the upcoming class will be available on the Hunger Center's website by November 19, 2021. Applications are due by January 14, 2022.

In the following pages you'll get a better sense of what you can expect from the application process, and answers to some frequently asked questions.

"The fellowship was invaluable to cementing my career in the nonprofit sector, particularly working on issues of food insecurity and poverty."

Christina Martinez ('11-'12)

▲ Fellows from the 21st Class ('14-'15) during field training, August 2014.

SELECTION CRITERIA

Here are some of the qualities that successful applicants to the Emerson Fellowship possess:

▲ Clockwise from left: Amirio Freeman, María Cristina Chicuén, De'Sean Weber, and Sarah Goldman ('17-'18) at midfield retreat in New Market, Tennessee, October 2017.

- A commitment to ending hunger and poverty in the United States
- An ability to adjust and adapt to new situations
- A commitment to racial equity and social justice
- Demonstrated leadership qualities and skills
- An ability to solve problems in creative and innovative ways
- Enthusiasm for learning from a wide variety of individuals with expertise in the area anti-hunger/anti-poverty space; and a willingness to search for new models in anti-hunger and anti-poverty work
- A lived experience with hunger and poverty
- Experience working in low-income communities
- Excitement about peer learning in a tight-knit community of fellows
- Bachelor's degree, or equivalent experience
- U.S. citizenship or permanent legal residency (required)

MEET THE EMERSON FELLOWS

The current class of Emerson Fellows are serving from 2021-2022. Get to know the current class and where they're working.

PREPARING YOUR APPLICATION

Applications will be available on the Hunger Center's website by November 19, 2021. They must be submitted via the website. Applications must be received no later than January 14, 2022. Follow the steps below to get started:

1

Begin by assembling your supporting materials, a three-page document, saved as a single PDF, which must include:

- A one-page resume;
- A one-page personal statement, single spaced, which addresses the following:
  - What values, principles, and identities (race, class, gender, etc.) shape your interest in the Bill Emerson National Hunger Fellowship?
  - What particular qualities, knowledge, experiences, and skills will you contribute to your potential field and policy placements?
  - How do you expect this fellowship to contribute to achieving your professional goals?
- A one-page response to the following short essay questions (each response should be single spaced and half-page in length):
  - How have your community work and life experiences changed your perspective on hunger and poverty over time?
  - What role do you believe government plays, or should play, in addressing complex social problems such as hunger, poverty, and systemic racism?

▲ Top: De'Sean Weber ('17-'18, 2nd from right) at a ribbon cutting ceremony for a healthy corner store in Jersey City, New Jersey.

▲ Bottom: Fellows from the 26th Class ('19-'20)

TAKE OUR ADVICE...

Your supporting materials are the soul of your application—make sure you're putting your best foot forward! Read our tips on how to improve your written responses and make your application shine.

2

Create an account and fill out your application form at our web portal. The form contains questions about your skills, interests, and demographic information.

3

Complete your application by submitting your supporting materials through the web portal.

APPLICATION TIMELINE

November 19, 2021

Application form available by this date on our website.

January 14, 2022

Deadline to submit applications.

January-February 2022

A selection committee of fellowship alums review applications. Hunger Center staff select semi-finalists.

February 2022

Semi-finalists invited to online one-on-one interviews with program staff.

March 2022

Finalists invited to online group interviews.

March-May 2022

Emerson Fellows are selected and notified of acceptance on a rolling basis.

Early June 2022

Fellows notified of their field placements.

Late August 2022

29th Class assembles for orientation.

Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial, Washington, D.C.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

---

◀ Fellows from the 27th Class ('20-'21) at the conclusion of their fellowship, July 2021.

Can I choose my field and policy placements?

No. Fellows are matched with both their field and policy placements by Emerson Program staff. Prior to starting each segment of the fellowship, fellows are invited to provide their preferences for topical interests, work environment, and the skills they would like to use or learn during their upcoming placements. Staff consult these preferences, as well as the host organizations' requirements and expectations, when matching fellows and placements.

Where can I read about past Emerson Fellows and their experiences?

You can search for Emerson Fellows by class year, location, and placement in our directory. There you can read the bios of past fellows, learn about what they accomplished at their field and policy placements, and read reports and blog posts they wrote during their time as a fellow.

Where do the Emerson Program and the Congressional Hunger Center get their funding?

Both the Emerson Program and the Hunger Center are supported through a combination of federal, corporate, and philanthropic grants, and individual donations. In 2020 the Emerson Program received support from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), C&S Wholesale Grocers, the Kroger Co. Foundation, and PepsiCo. You can read more about our sponsors here.

How do alums of the Emerson Fellowship stay connected to the program and the Hunger Center?

Emerson Fellowship alums stay connected in many ways. The Hunger Center encourages the fellows to think of themselves as being Emerson Fellows for life. Alums serve the program directly as application reviewers, trainers, coaches, and supervisors at both field and policy placements. Alums also help spread the word about the program to potential fellowship applicants, share job opportunities with the fellowship network, and organize social gatherings and reunions. And, following the fellowship, alums continue to work to end hunger and poverty.

STILL HAVE QUESTIONS?

If you've got questions about the fellowship or the application process that this guide doesn't answer, contact Program Associate Emma Williamson at ewilliamson@hungercenter.org

Congressional Hunger Center

200 Massachusetts Ave NW, 7th Floor
Washington DC 20001
www.hungercenter.org

☎ (202) 547-7022

📠 (202) 547-7575

Have questions not covered by this guide?
Contact Program Associate Emma Williamson
at ewilliamson@hungercenter.org

Aerial photo of Washington, D.C. by Famartin CC BY-SA 4.0
Photo of Martin Luther King Jr Memorial courtesy SonderQuest
Photo of Rep. Emerson and Rep. Leland courtesy Marty LaVor
Icons courtesy Font Awesome CC BY 4.0

Cover Photo: 26th Class Emerson Fellows at an event
in Washington, D.C.

© 2021 Congressional Hunger Center
This edition published 10/25/2021